RE-OPENING OF MINES HINGES ON DISCUSSION

Threat of General Walkout In Airplane Industry Is Wired To FDR.

CONGRESS EYES TROUBLE

CIO Chieftain Expected To Answer Roosevelt Appeal After Conference.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— John L. Lewis, CIO leader, and Myron Taylor of the U. S. Steel Corp., today started a conference behind locked doors in a Washington hotel in an effort to end the paralyzing strike of 53,000 United Mine Workers in coal mines owned by the major steel companies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A momentous conference today between CIO's John L. Lewis and Myron C. Taylor, former board chairman of U. S. Steel, held the yes-or-no decision on immediate reopening of strike-bound captive coal mines.

The meeting had a last-chance quality about it, for President Roosevelt was considering action and congress, angry and impatient, seemed ready to take drastic steps to eliminate industrial walkouts.

In congressional eyes the captive mine dispute was rapidly becoming a symbol of the whole problem of work stoppages affecting defense, and the pressure for action increased with the overnight threat of a general strike of airplane factory workers in five eastern states.

The general strike threat arose from the protracted CIO dispute with Air Associates, Inc., at Bendix, N. J. Richard Frankensteen, national director of the CIO union involved, telegraphed President Roosevelt that unless the controversy could be settled to the union's satisfaction by Thursday, he had no recourse but to use the economic strength of the union to protect its members.

The sole issue in the captive mines dispute was the United Mine Workers' demand for a

Knox Won't Tell Whether U. S. Has Sunk Nazi Subs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Knox said today that the navy probably would apply a policy of secrecy to the sinkings of any German submarines in engagements with American war vessels.

Knox flatly declined either to confirm or deny reports, brought to his attention at his press conference, that some German submarines had been sunk.

Told that "rumors and reports of the sinking of subs" had been current here and elsewhere for some time, he said that nothing could be said about that and continued with a discussion of British war policy on such things.

"The British have been in the war a long time," Knox said, "but you haven't read of very many submarines being sunk by the British, have you?"

This does not mean, however, that many submarines have not been sunk, Knox said. Withholding of news, however, is "just a matter of obvious policy," he explained.

FIRE HITS OSLO

Blaze Spreads Havoc Through Nazi-Occupied Norway Capital.

LONDON —(INS)— A terrific fire, described as the worst in living memory, spread havoc yesterday in Oslo, capital of German-occupied Norway Reuters (British) news agency said today.

Quoting the Oslo radio, Reuters said the blaze wiped out a number of six-story buildings, garages, workshops and a hotel.

VETERAN KILLED

LANCASTER —(AP)— An automobile struck and fatally injured Emmitt L. Karshner, 46, a World war veteran and landscape gardener ,last night.

Is This How Germans Would Re-Divide South America?

In his Navy day speech, President Roosevelt revealed that secret plans had been discovered for the redivision of South America into five parts (one taking in the Panama canal) under German control. The map at right, based on the studies of Professor Karl Haushofer of Munich shows five zones that he had mapped to be under German, Italian and Spanish domination. (1) Columbia re-absorbs all of the Central America republics. (2) Cuba, West Indies, Venezuela and Guiana would be a German colony. (3) Peru, Ecuador and part of Bolivia would be under Italian influence. (4) All of Brazil nominally independent. (5) Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Paraguay, south Bolivia and south Brazil as part of Germany. Picture at left shows the vital Gatun locks of the Panama canal. Meanwhile as President Roosevelt maintained he had ample proof of his charge of Nazi plans to re-divide South America, both the Berlin and Rome poles of the axis continued to berate the president and clamored for publication of the map, which Roosevelt refuses to do, asserting that to do so would reveal the source through which it was obtained.

KEPT PROMISES, LOCKE SAYS AT G. O. P. MEETING

Declares Administration Takes Long Range View of Civic Improvements.

Asserting that he has carried out his seven-point program of two years ago, Mayor William J. Locke, seeking a second term on the Republican ticket, said last night at a party rally at G. O. P. headquarters that his administration has "taken a long range view toward civic improvemtns in the water, sewer and traffic programs which are being designed to fill the needs of a growing city for years to come."

Discussing his platform of two years ago, the mayor referred to his pledge to:

1. Treat courteously any persons having business with the city; 2. Meet all questions squarely and without evasion; 3. Effect re-organization of the city engineering department to eliminate unnecessary outside engineering service; 4. Apply business methods to operation of the city; 5. Co-operate with civic groups and public officials; 6. Take a long range view toward civic improvements; 7. Make a study of the traffic problem and an honest effort to solve it.

At a colored Democratic rally last night, Fred M. Bushnell, Democratic candidate for mayor, proposed expansion of the city's park and recreational program to include a park and baseball diamond and possibly a swimming

5 FLIERS DIE

Plane Crashes Into Hill; Three Other Pilots Sought.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(AP)—A two-motored attack training plane from Kelly field crashed into a hill in eastern New Mexico yesterday killing five army fliers.

Maj. A. D. Smith, operations officer at the Albuquerque army airbase, said the plane evidently was attempting to make a forced landing with one of its motors dead.

The victims were Second Lieutenants W. H. Carpenter, 28, Rothville, Mo., and G. W. Jones, 22, Hastings, Neb., and Cadets K. C. Manchee and E. B. LaRoche both of Dallas, and M. Marantz of Brooklyn.

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(AP)—Four days' intensive search by army bombers has uncovered no trace of three army pilots or their P-40 pursuit planes, swallowed up in a mountain storm, but officers indicated today the hunt would continue.

DIR LOSES SUIT OVER PAY CLAIM

Judge Huston Refuses Order of Mandamus In Action To Collect Wages.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today had refused to grant a mandamus order requiring City Auditor Paul L. Kelley to pay John Dir, former city employe, $84.50 in wages, but the court suggested that City Solicitor Marion D. Ward obtain an opinion from the public employment retirement system in the case to avoid other disputes involving the employment of men past the legal retirement age.

The city auditor contended that Dir, who had been retired because of age, was illegally rehired last summer on the recommendation of Mayor William J. Locke.

In dismissing Dir's action for a writ of mandamus, Judge Huston held that the former city employe has a right to bring a suit against the city to collect wages he believes are due him, but he cannot file the action as a taxpayer.

The mandamus suit was a taxpayer's action which Judge Huston said was improper because Dir "is not seeking this money

GOING TOO FAR

He Doesn't Mind Pranks, But Molasses Proves Too Much.

WAPAKONETA—(AP)—Hallowe'en pranksters carried the holiday spirit a bit too far, Robert Temple thought today, when they poured a quart of molasses into the gasoline tank of his auto.

Temple, who lives near New Bremen, had driven only a short distance when his motor balked. A garageman found sticky molasses where gasoline should have been.

Act to Eliminate Left Turns At Two Busy Intersections

Steps to eliminate left hand turns on two of the busiest intersections in Mansfield's downtown —Fourth and Main street and Third and Main streets—were taken today by Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

Boals said he had forwarded to Mayor William J. Locke and Arthur L. Croak, chairman of city council's traffic committee, recommendations that motorists be prohibited from making left turns at both of those intersections.

Boals said that he believed that cars waiting to make left turns were one of the biggest factors in slowing up traffic and causing Main street traffic jams.

The traffic commissioner used information from a survey made by the new traffic squad during its first week of work in August.

"In a survey conducted by the traffic department on Aug. 6, 1941, over a period of seven years," said Boals in his letters to the mayor and Croak, "we found an average flow of traffic from all four directions at the intersections of Third and Main streets and at Fourth and Main to be about 1,000 cars per hour.

"Seventy per cent of these cars traveled straight through the intersection, while 14 per cent turned left and 16 per cent turned right. In view of these facts and figures which clearly show that a minority of traffic is holding up the majority, the traffic department recommends that no left turn be made at any time at the corners of Third and Main and Fourth and Main streets."

U. S. Asks Future Use Of All British Bases

Request Reported Part of Lease-Lend Arrangement and Program for 'Better World After War.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States was understood today to have asked Great Britain to make all British bases available for future American use.

The request was part of a broad program presented by the United States to Britain and China, in connection with lend-lease arrangements, to provide guarantees for a better world after the war.

Post-war doctrines to which the United States has asked Britain to subscribe were said to include:

1. Removal of excessive trade restrictions.
2. Non-discrimination in international commercial relations.
3. Non-discriminatory use of raw materials.
4. Willingness to regulate supplies of commodities to protect interests of consumer nations and people.
5. International finance to aid essential enterprises and contribute to continuous development of all countries.

China, it was understood, has been asked to subscribe to the trade principles, but has not been asked to make any bases or locations for future bases available to the United States.

Negotiations on this program between the United States and the two recipients of lend-lease benefits are concerned with methods of repayment for American war

IT'LL WARM UP

Weatherman Says Mercury to Climb; Hits Low of 26.

The coldest weather of the season sharply warned Mansfielders today that winter is near, but the weatherman said the cold will let up tomorrow and there will be more warm days before winter arrives.

The mercury dropped to 26 degrees, five below freezing, early today to make Mansfield one of the coldest cities in the state. Climbing slowly, the temperature had reached only 44 at noon today.

Thick ice appeared this morning in exposed places and all vegetation that was still alive wilted under the blast of cold.

Cloudy and warmer with occasional rain was promised for Thursday, with the fall "cold wave" moving on to the east coast. Skies were expected to clear this afternoon.

FILLS VACANCY

WELLSVILLE —(U.P.)— Clarence H. Peters, justice of the peace and insurance broker, was named by the Republican executive committee today as mayoralty nominee to fill the Nov. 4 ticket vacancy caused by the death of his father, Charles S. Peters, 66.

The elder Peters, president of city council and an oil operator, died of a heart attack while sitting in his automobile in an oil field yesterday.

BIOFF ABSOLVES CO-DEFENDANT

Says Browne Didn't Know He Got Over Million From Movies.

NEW YORK —(AP)— William Bioff, the immigrant labor leader who migrated to Hollywood where he says he became a $1,000,000 messenger boy for the film industry, has absolved his co-defendant of any participation in his unusual activities.

Bioff, west coast representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage employes (AFL), testified yesterday that George E. Browne, IATSE president, had no knowledge of the fact that Bioff had collected "over a million dollars" from movie executives.

The two labor leaders are being tried on federal charges they extorted $550,000 from the motion picture industry on threats to ruin it with widespread strikes.

CONNALLY HITS BACK AT FOES OF ROOSEVELT

Says Charges President Tries To Involve Country In War Are Unwarranted.

SEES BILL PASSAGE

Confident Senate Will O. K. Broader Changes In Neutrality Act.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senator Connally (D-Tex.) struck back today at critics of President Roosevelt's foreign policies, labeling as "unwarranted" their charges that the president was seeking to involve this country in an undeclared war through revision of the neutrality act.

The best answer to those charges, the Texan told reporters, was the fact that the United States was not at war.

"If the president had really wanted to involve this country in war, he could easily have done so a year ago," insisted Connally, who is chairman of the foreign relations committee and floor manager of the pending bill to permit the arming of merchant ship; and lift the ban against their belligerent ports.

Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) expressed the opinion that the president's bluntly worded navy day speech had aroused new opposition to the bill, but Connally remained confident, however, that the administration could muster a minimum of 52 votes, three more than a majority, for the broader legislation now pending.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) charged in the senate yesterday the president's speech Monday night disclosed that he had "tricked" the American people and already had done what he could to "plunge this nation into a shooting war."

Connally retorted that Taft's charges were "unwarranted" by the facts as he saw them.

"The president has repeatedly stated that he wanted to keep war away from this hemisphere and he has kept the country out of war," the Texas senator declared. "Of course, he is in sym-

HURT IN ESCAPE

Girl Fractures Ankles In Attempt To Leave Hotel.

CLEVELAND — (AP)—A pretty 19-year-old Memphis girl attempted to "escape" from her $20-a-day hotel room here, police said today, and landed in Charity hospital with possible fractures of both ankles and possible internal injuries.

Detective Thomas White said the girl had registered at Hotel Cleveland last night as Judy Walters, but that her real name was Laverne McGonagil. She said she had come to Cleveland to seek work and left home because her guardian, an uncle, was "too strict" with her.

Detective White said the girl was trying to leave the hotel to avoid the humiliation of explanations about her funds. The hotel said it would take no action against her.

Score Break In Line Defending Big Naval Base

Russians Admit Planting Death-Trap Mines In Preparation to Leave Ukraine Industrial Center; U-Boats Sink 14 Ships.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(UP)—Radio Moscow, heard here today, reported that the situation at Rostov "is critical and the city is seriously threatened." Heavy German air bombardment of Moscow yesterday was admitted but it was said that no military targets were hit.

(By Associated Press)

German troops were reported to have scored a break-through today into the Crimea peninsula, site of Russia's Black sea naval base of Sevastopol, while other Nazi columns stormed at the gates of Rostov-on-Don in what appeared to be a climactic phase of the four-months-old battle of the Ukraine.

Soviet dispatches said Red army engineers were already planting death-trap mines in Rostov and preparing to leave the city of 500,000 a smoking ruin.

The main German attacking column was said to be only 10 miles from the center of the big Don river port, which guards the northern approach to the Caucasus oil fields. In Berlin, Nazi military commentators said that once the city had fallen, the way would be open for swift armored divisions to strike south toward the nerve center of the oil region at Maikop, 175 miles below Rostov.

The Russian newspaper Pravda acknowledged "great danger" at Moscow, the Donets basin, the Crimea and Rostov, but declared that Adolf Hitler's prediction of victory before winter had collapsed.

Pravda said the Nazi high command had thrown almost the entire German land army, artillery and tanks, and nine-tenths of the air force into the Russian campaign.

"The enemy has not yet been halted. He is still pressing on despite heroic resistance and counter-attacks by the Red army, which is strewing the route of advance of the Nazi troops with heaps of German corpses.

"Nevertheless, it is perfectly clear that no temporary successes can bring Germany her desired victory and peace."

Travelers arriving outside the U. S. S. R. from Kuibyshev, auxiliary Soviet capital, said the first 15 days of November would probably be the most crucial period in Russia's struggle.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said that three German divisions—about 60,000 men—succeeded in breaking through Red army defenses into the Crimea after 10 days of hard fighting.

The reported break presumably occurred at the entrance to the

'RATTLETRAPS' BIG PROBLEM

Aged, Worn-Out Fire Equipment Cited as Need For Passage of Tax Levy.

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles explaining Mansfield's fire protection problems and showing what the passage of the proposed half mill tax levy would do to solve them.)

About 20 years ago, Mansfield covered an area of about four square miles. The population was only 24,000 persons and the total tax valuation on property ran to $30,000,000. Five pieces of fire fighting equipment, all modern, protected the city.

Today, Mansfield has taken on an additional two and a half square miles, has grown to a size of approximately 40,000 population and has almost doubled its tax valuation. The city has in that time, however, increased its number of fire fighting apparatus to only six.

Of the six pieces of apparatus, only one is modern, a truck purchased three years ago. The rest of the equipment is antiquated and ranges in age from 12 to 22 years.

Forgetting the fire fighting facilities of the apparatus for a moment, consider the automotive question alone. Supposing you drove an auto which was 12, 18 or 22 years of age? What kind of performance would you expect? Of the six trucks now in service,

HELD BY FBI

Etzel Charged With Sabotage of Bombing Planes.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The FBI today announced the arrest at Baltimore, Md., of William Michael Etzel, charged with sabotaging airplanes manufactured by the Glenn Martin company, plant there.

According to the FBI, Etzel has admitted numerous acts of sabotage to bombers being manufactured for the war department.

Etzel, 21, reportedly has confessed his acts were due to "a desire to prevent the use of these bombers against the Axis powers."

Although Etzel was born in the United States, his father and mother were born in Germany, according to the FBI.

Toledo Club Would Serve as Reformatory 'Parole Agent'

A plan whereby members of the Toledo Rotary club would become "parole agents" for Lucas county inmates released from the Ohio State reformatory was discussed with officials of the state welfare department in Mansfield yesterday.

Meeting at the reformatory, members of the Youth Service committee of the Toledo club, which is studying the feasability of adopting such a project, discussed the proposal with Supt. Arthur L. Glattke and William K. Mackey, chief of the state division of probation and parole.

Mackey was formerly chaplain at the institution.

Irving C. Reynolds, chairman of the group, said following the session that his committee would recommend the adoption of the plan as a project for the Toledo Rotary club.

"It is our aim," Reynolds said, "to accept the responsibility under the parole division, of counseling paroled Lucas county inmates, or other young men assigned to the Toledo district."

"We feel that in this way we can assist the probation and parole division in its program of rehabilitation of reformatory inmates."

The chairman said the aim of the project would be to assist parolees in obtaining employment

NAZIS PUSHING TOWARD ROSTOV, ENTER CRIMEA

Russians Admit Plans To Evacuate Industrial City; Base Threatened.

Perekop isthmus, a four-mile-wide bottleneck linking the Crimea and the U. S. S. R. mainland, which has been the scene of bitter fighting.

Nazi shock troops, attacking with strong aerial support, cracked the Soviet defenses and captured 15,700 prisoners, 13 tanks and 109 cannon, the German communique said.

"Pursuit of the defeated enemy has begun," it added.

Aside from the Sevastopol base, the Crimea is strategically important for two other reasons.

1. Its eastern extremity guards the narrow strait into the Sea of Azov.

2. Troops crossing the strait would have a short-cut route into the Caucasus.

Although Sevastopol is Russia's main naval base on the Black sea, authoritative London quarters said its capture would not be disastrous to the Soviet fleet. Base facilities could be transferred across the sea to Batumi or Novorossisk, on the Caucasian mainland.

At sea, Hitler's high command credited Nazi U-boats with sinking 14 ships totaling 47,000 tons in a six-day pursuit of a convoy traveling from Gibraltar to England.

An escorting British destroyer was also torpedoed and sunk, the high command said, and almost the entire convoy was wiped out.

On the bloody front before Moscow, the Russians acknowledged the development of a menacing new thrust by the Germans to the vicinity of Volokolamsk, 72 miles northwest of the Soviet capital, about midway between Mozhaisk and Kalinin.

Soviet front-line reports, however, declared that the Germans had lost 60 per cent of their effectives in the past few days of savage fighting around Moscow and that it had become apparent the invaders would not take the city.

A Red army bulletin said Gen. Gregory H. Zhukhov's defense forces, under no-retreat orders, had recaptured four villages northwest of Moscow.

Throughout the night, the Soviet communique said, fighting raged in the familiar regions of Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of Moscow; Maloyaroslavets, 65 miles southwest, and the new sector of Volokolamsk.

Bad weather conditions continued to hamper the movement of troops and vehicles struggling over mud-bogged roads and fields.

German military reports conceded that the Russians were launching strong counter-attacks, especially in the Kalinin sector, but withheld details.

Aerial activity surged to peak violence over the snow-covered battlefront, with Nazi bombers heavily attacking industries and supply lines in Moscow itself while Soviet warplanes struck back at German troops in the field.

A Russian communique said a single Red unit in three days had destroyed 27 Nazi tanks, 135 ammunition trucks and a large ammunition dump.

'Nearly one and a half battalions of enemy infantry were annihilated by bombs and machine-gun fire,' the communique said.

Russian dispatches said that Germans were digging trenches and tank traps essentially defensive works, in some areas before Moscow in an effort to consolidate earlier gains against Soviet counter-attacks.

This followed reports that trench warfare had developed in the siege of Leningrad.

Germans declared today that that northern city was being subjected to an ever-increasing bombardment by German artillery and planes, with aerial raiders dropping half-ton and one-ton missiles on fortifications and war industries.

Artillery was the weapon of which Muscovites boasted. The hammering of Red army batteries before the capital linked with the fighting of other services under orders against a retreat was declared to be so fierce as to make the defenses impregnable.

Soviet airmen were said to have struck heavy blows at the invaders west of Moscow knocking out 42 tanks, 86 armored cars and 430 trucks Monday alone and breaking up two infantry regiments.

Australia's government proposed heavier taxation of her 10,000,000 population to meet costs of her war effort.

Treasurer J. B. Chifley introduced in parliament at Canberra a record Australian budget of $1,049,1000,000, which included $700,476,000 for war purposes.

Both German and British airmen took off on offensive flights in cross-channel warfare overnight.

British pilots flying American-built Havocs bombed German airdromes in northern France without a loss, the air ministry news service said, raiding one airport near Abbeville three times in two hours.

A British communique acknowledged slight damage and a small number of casualties from small-scale German raids on southwest England.

LEWIS, TAYLOR CONFER TODAY

Decision on Coal Strike Seen as President Gets Threat of Airplane Strike.

union shop in the coal shafts which the steel companies operate to obtain fuel for their blast furnaces. Under a union ship provision, each employe would have to become a member of the union after a period of probation. The dispute directly affects 53,000 UMW members whose strike became effective Monday in captive mines in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Alabama.

The United States Steel corporation told the national defense mediation board yesterday it was willing to accept the board's recent offer which contained the proviso that both parties to the dispute must agree in advance to accept the board's decision as final.

But the Weirton Steel company and the Wheeling Steel corporation, whose interests likewise are affected, notified the board that they preferred another alternative—that the dispute be settled by a joint board made up of miners and operators.

U. S. Steel's action, however, was taken as an advance hint that Taylor would present some such settlement proposal to Lewis, and that prospect dimmed the conference's chances for success from the outset.

Lewis already has assailed the mediation board's handling of the captive mine controversy, and it seemed unlikely that he would consent to entrust the dispute to the board again.

The CIO chieftain, who thrice has disregarded requests from President Roosevelt to send the miners back to work, was expected to issue a formal answer to Mr. Roosevelt's final appeal after his discussions with Taylor.

President Roosevelt let his press conference know yesterday that he had under consideration new legislation designed to cope with defense strikes in general, but refused to be drawn out on the subject.

On Capitol Hill, however, the discussion of legislation was more specific, and while some proponents of anti-strike measures were encouraged by the disclosure that the president was studying the subject, others were manifestly in no mood to wait.

In house circles talk was heard of seeking action on a bill of Rep. Vinson (D., Ga.) which would provide a 30-day cooling off period and freeze shops at their present open or closed union status for the duration of the defense emergency.

In the other wing of the capitol, meanwhile, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) said that a proposal by Senator Bailey (D., N. C.) to impose prison sentences and fines on defense strikes and their leaders when strikes were called with intent to impede defense production was receiving consideration.

The threatened general strike of aircraft factory workers, growing out of the Air Associates dispute at Bendix, N. J., would affect plants in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Connecticut.

A walkout in a Michigan machine gun factory highlighted labor developments, a welders strike appeared to be spreading along the Pacific coast, and a walkout was threatened at a Lackawanna, N. Y., steel mill.

Production stopped early today at the $5,800,000 machine gun plant at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company in Plymouth, Mich.

The welders' strike involved about 3,500 workmen in the Los Angeles-Long Beach harbor shipyards and an estimated 1,700 in the Seattle-Tacoma area. Their work stoppage was called in protest to the AFL's refusal to charter a separate welders' union.

CIO members' demand for a satisfactory wage agreement led to the threat of a strike at Bethlehem Steel company's Lackawanna, N. Y., plant. The exact terms of the union's wage demands were not made public. The plant employes 14,000 and has a huge backlog of defense orders.

'RATTLETRAPS' BIG PROBLEM

Aged, Worn-Out Fire Equipment Cited as Need For Passage of Tax Levy.

two are now 22 years of age, two are 18 years old, one 12 years, and another the only piece described by Fire Chief Charles Seeburger as "dependable" is only four years old.

Chief Seeburger declares that his men are kept busy trying to find enough spare parts in junk yards to keep the city's old pumpers in operation. The machines are so old that they are no longer being manufactured. The original manufacturers have long ago given up production of the trucks and no longer stock repair parts for them.

Several times this year Mansfielders have seen their fire department battle blazes, greatly handicapped in their fight by the "rattletrap" equipment.

Firemen at all stations know most of the defects of their equipment but must be constantly on a lookout for new ones.

Taking the equipment, piece by piece, their estimates go about like this:

The Mack truck purchased in 1938 is a good modern piece of equipment. It carries 750 feet of hose and is in good shape. It's only need is a reload for its hose.

The 12-year-old American La France has recently had its motor overhauled and is in fair shape. It carries 1,000 feet of hose and also needs a reload.

Next come the two Packards put into service in 1923. The chassis are 18 years old but the bodies placed on them are much older, having been removed from the two Seagraves abandoned in 1914. They are "just worn out" according to the firemen. Their pumps are home-made and are constantly breaking down. There's little or no chance of getting repair parts.

Fifth on the list is the White truck purchased in 1919. It is also "worn out" and is very dangerous because its brakes are not too good," firemen say. The same goes for the Packards.

Last but not least is the Seagrave aerial truck put into service in 1919. Firemen fear work on the 75-foot ladder attached to it. They say it has sprung out of shape and that its wood is splintered and cracked in many places.

upon their release, and to help them readjust themselves into society.

With Reynolds was Frank Braden, E. M. Warder, Joe Adams, C. K. Searles, R. E. Smith and E. G. Cook.

Mackey commended the Toledo men for their interest in the future welfare of parolees, asserting that the proposed project, as far as he knew, was the first venture of its kind in Ohio or any other state.

"I am very much interested in the project," the division chief said. "I am hopeful that it will prove satisfactory and that the movement will spread to other cities and other clubs."

Pointing out that the state welfare department was short-handed, he said the program would do much to supplement the rehabilitation program carried on by the state.

Mackey plans to go to Toledo within the next three weeks to outline the proposed program to the Toledo club. He will give the group facts and figures concerning the number of parolees in Lucas county.

pool in the city's industrial section.

He said "the people in this ward (Fifth) need more recreational facilities and especially more playgrounds for children."

Sharing the program spotlight with the mayor at the Republican meeting was his service-safety director, C. M. Crafton, who answered Democratic charges that he and Locke had paid "too much attention to private business."

"We have put our heart and soul and all our energy into the job of running the city; we work not only eight hours a day but sometimes 12 and 16 hours at city business whether we are in our offices all the time or not," Crafton said.

The service-safety director also defended the mayor against charges of the Democrats that he had held up the sewer program, asserting that "there never has been any legislation passed by council authorizing me to advertise for bids for the storm sewer work. The mayor definitely did not block the program."

Locke urged the election of a Republican city council for the sake of harmony, adding that "if we go into the city hall and do a real job we need the full cooperation of council and all city officials.

"We have tried to treat people courteously in their dealings with the city, regardless of their political affiliations, and even have been criticized for not being partisan enough," he said.

"We did not make a lot of promises the last time and we are not going to in this campaign. It's a question of whether the people want a man as mayor who promises everything whether it can be accomplished or not or one who is pledged to do his best and has carried out his first campaign pledge."

Bushnell and Howard G. Miller, candidate for re-election as council president, will speak at a Democratic rally beginning at 8 p. m. today in party headquarters in the Martin hardware building.

The Republicans will hold their final city-wide rally of the week Thursday night at North Lake park. The G. O. P. women's organization will serve a covered dish dinner in the park pavilion at 6:30 p. m. and the meeting will follow.

"The laborer is worthy of his hire and if this plaintiff (Dir) gave to the city a dollar's worth of labor for a dollar agreed to be paid, there ought to be worked out some method whereby he could receive his compensation without the necessity of expending its value in an effort to recover his hire," the court opinion said.

"However, in the face of orders received by the auditor from the retirement system, it is important to have this question settled, not only for the benefit of this plaintiff and the defendant auditor, but for the benefit of those men who still possess sufficient ability to perform valuable services for hire.

"If the legislature has enacted a law that by reason of its terms these men cannot be hired except under certain circumstances, then the law ought to be more elastic."

materials now being poured out to them.

It is conceded here that it will be impractical if not impossible to obtain entire repayment in cash or goods. The American government is moving already, therefore, to make sure that lasting benefits will result from this great outlay of money and materials.

In the case of Britain the United States wishes to implement through definite agreements the eight-point Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic peace declaration.

The United States has asked for the right to use British bases as a part of America's long-range defense aims. The most controversial of the British bases would be Singapore, jealously watched by the Japanese who have said frequently they would consider it a cause of "grave concern" if the bases were opened to American warships.

The United States is not substituting principles for the lend-lease, debt entirely. But this government wishes to accompany its arrangements for repayment of the lend-lease debt at least with guarantees that economic maladjustments of the old world will not be permitted in the new.

82,000 POLES EXECUTED FOR ANTI-NAZIISM

But They Continue To Wreck Trains and Kill German Occupation Troops.

(Editor's Note—Here is another in a series of articles about underground, anti-Nazi activity in the occupied countries of Europe.)

By MERRILL MUELLER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—The free Polish government today charged that during two years of German occupation in Poland, Nazi administrators have executed 82,000 Poles, been directly responsible for the deaths of another 30,000, and keep an additional 125,000 in concentration camps.

Despite these brutal efforts to keep the country under control, Polish resistance continues, a spokesman said.

He declared:

"Two years ago on Oct. 25 Dr. Hans Frank established civilian occupation of Poland. Since that time the Nazis have executed 82,000 on charges of everything from sabotage and espionage to insulting German officers, while at the same time some 150,000 have been thrown into various prisons and concentration camps, where at least 30,000 have been reported killed and cremated, according to our official tabulations.

"We are not cut off from Poland. We have an excellent underground system working. It is so good, in fact, that pictures of the signing of the Russo-Polish accord were published in illegal papers, printed inside Poland, within a month after the pictures were taken in England.

"We know that some 10,000 Poles are being held in Warsaw prisons, 6,000 in Posen, while nearly 40,000 are in the notorious Oswiecim concentration camp.

"How many thousands of Poles have been sent to Germany and forced to join labor battalions, or thrown into concentration camps there, we have no way of knowing.

"Fifteen miles from Warsaw in the village of Palmiry—renamed the 'Village of Death'—at least 6,000 Poles were executed for interfering with German communications, wrecking German supply train, killing Nazi sentries and officers, aiding in the dissemination of our propaganda, taking part in underground activities, and smuggling arms and supplies from center to center.

"In open fighting recently in the Bilgoraj forests near Chelm, a number of storm troopers were killed by Poles who wisely disappeared before Nazi reinforcements arrived on the scene.

"Another group of Polish patriots recently wrecked a German food train which was going to Smolensk, and stole most of the food it carried.

"Near Siedlce, a number of Poles attacked a German scout column, killing 15, while Nazi cavalry troops riding eastward through the forest near Lublin were ambushed. Fourteen dead were left."

Mansfield trainees are picked up at 8 a. m. each morning at the Ohio State Employment service office, taken to the camp, returned to Mansfield and unloaded downtown after work in the afternoon or evening.

Earning $25 per month and their transportation, these men receive training in welding, machine shop, and sheet metal work.

CHAPTER VIII

"Thank you very much," Ken Palmer was saying, "but I do not know how to dance, Miss Boone."

Joy looked up at him, arms akimbo, there at the entrance of the McMurray home again. She spoke in mock tone of exasperation.

"No? Then what were you doing out on the floor with Polly when I first saw you a while ago? Stringing beads, or working mathamatics problems, or——?"

Ken blushed, at that. "Oh no! I—the fact is, Polly was trying to teach me! We—I was just walking. B-bluffing!"

Joy laughed. "For goodness sakes! The only man I ever asked to dance with me, can't!"

She might have said more, but their presence had been discovered and other boys and girls came to them. Ward McMurray was first.

"If your chauffeur doesn't feel up to it," he began, grinning, "I'd sure like to shake my boots with you, Miss Joy!"

She danced away with him waving a farewell to the group. "Does every man call every girl 'Miss' out here?" she asked.

"Why, some. Until we get over being scared. It's a custom. Among the ranch folk anyway."

"I like it. I like everything out here!"

"Sa-a-a-ay, that's great! I'll tell dad. He and Dr. Palmer are hosts, you know. Where's Sis?"

"Why—" Joy looked around. "I thought Polly was with us."

"You dance like a dream, ma'am."

"Now, now!"

"I mean it." Ward leaned back to look at the slender blond person in his arms. "I don't pay compliments I don't mean."

"I believe that, Mr. McMurray."

"You could call me Ward. We don't do any mistering out here."

"You just do a lot of 'missing'!"

He smiled broadly. "All right, then. Joy. All right?"

"Sure—Ward!" She giggled a bit in sheer exhiliration. "You are nice! You even have crinkly hair. As black as Polly's."

"Aw!"

"I see Tootsy—that's Miss Carlson, remember. Why, she's dancing! Look!"

"Well?"

"But — Tootsy doesn't!" Joy stopped short, to stare. "She never has!"

"Guess I'm seein' double, then," Ward said. "It's her. She, I mean. With Dr. Palmer."

They moved on, swaying and twirling and stepping gracefully, but they watched the older couple too.

"I never knew Bettina Carlson to dance before in all my life!" Joy declared.

"You known her always?"

"Well, no. She has been my secretary for three years, though."

"Hmmm! Bet she's got a past."

"Hush!"

"Ward grinned. "She's a little pink this evening, isn't she?"

"Let's go over there, Ward. Come on."

* * *

Miss Carlson, it turned out, was indeed a little pink. Pink with pleasure. She greeted her young employer almost too excitedly. And for that matter, Kenyon Thomas Palmer, Ph. D., himself was flushed.

"Most exhilirating!" he declared, applauding the music as the dancing stopped. "A lovely ranch home you have here, Mr. McMurray. You must be proud of your parents."

"Yes sir, I am. You folks having a good time?"

"Delightful!" Bettina supplied.

Joy was staring at her, close-up. Joy went "clk-clk-clk" with her tongue at Bettina, then said. "Toot-sy! And you're the one supposed to look after me!"

Miss Carlson was hard put to maintain dignity and still explain. But it didn't matter. Nobody was standing in ceremony at this night's celebration. The orchestra leader came near them now and shouted. "Git yore pardners for a Paul Jones!"

Ward had to explain that. "You two follow right behind Joy and me," he invited, "and you'll catch on. It's a group dance. Lots of parading and sashaying, and more fun than riding broncs. Unbend, Dr. Palmer, unbend!"

Big Ken Palmer, son of the university president, had watched the talking and laughing and general festivity from his spot beside the door, after Ward took Joy away. Now, though, he felt out of things. In truth, this evening had been alternately exciting and distressing to him. It was the first party he had attended in years, and it was different from any he had ever known. He had just ended a strange little adventure with two of the prettiest girls in christendom, one of them nationally renowned, and the effects of that still sang within him, still disturbed him. Joy Boone was yonder dancing now, so he turned to go outside and try to think.

Alone in the semi-darkness for a moment, he met Polly McMurray walking back toward the house.

"Oh," he said. "You—you didn't come in with us."

"No." She stopped.

"I—look, Polly, would you mind walking out with me a ways? To talk? I don't want to take any more dancing lessons."

She turned to walk slowly beside him. "You'd better," she said flatly. "You'll need them."

"Hunh!"

"Joy Boone dances a great deal, I imagine."

"Yes. I was thinking about her. It's what I want to talk about."

"Oh, you want to talk about her, to me." Polly's tone should have sounded a warning, but Ken Palmer was inexperienced.

"Yes. I—look, Polly, what do you make of—that tonight? In the car, I mean?"

Polly looked straight ahead at the desert. They had halted out under the stars beside a rail fence. "I don't make anything of it."

"I don't understand, either. I hoped maybe you could help me."

He said that almost pleadingly. Polly was suddenly touched. After all, Ken Palmer was just a big kid, she realized. Somebody's brother. Helpless, like Ward. No, her brother Ward had more savvy —but—

"Oh Ken, of course I will if I can!" she said that impulsively, but quietly. "I mean, I don't see anything to be concerned about. Joy is—is a very vivacious person, isn't she? She can be ever so important to Frontier university, too; remember that!"

"Yes. But—"

"She just likes to be entertained. You must, uh, talk to her, Ken. You are perhaps too bookish and scholarly. Too bashful."

He contemplated that. "Should I have—kissed her?" he spoke in genuine awe.

Polly didn't answer at once. Finally she murmured, "I didn't say that. I didn't say that, Ken!"

She avoided looking at him. Instead, she found herself nervously fingering the buckle of her belt. It was a belt of palo-mino leather, hand-tooled beautifully by her brother Ward with desert flower designs, and it matched the leather "beanie" which he had tooled for her too. The "beanie" was a saucy thing topped off her ebony curls. It and the belt in, turn matched the tooled tan slipper she wore. Her dress this evening was no "formal" but was a gray linen on which were stamped numerous cattle brands in brown, as if burned there. It was all a truly novel costume, a "western" that was infinitely becoming to Polly, making her look nearer 16 than the 21 she was. Even Dr. Palmer had told her admiringly that she looked like a senior in high school rather than in college this evening.

But she wasn't thinking of her appearance now. She was still worried about the confusion in her heart.

"Out here in the West, Ken," she began, presently, "people are different, I guess. They act and talk more—direct. They aren't afraid of anything. Of anything, Ken! We like our men to make up their own minds, and then act as they feel is right. Independence is the word, I guess. Ward does his own thinking. So do my boy friends. You see, it's—"

"Polly!" Ken held out a hand, in sudden distress.

"Oh, I hate to chide you, Ken. You really are nice, and I want us to be friends. Honest I do, so very much!" She revealed something of her emotional intensity here. "But Ken—don't you see?"

He looked at her, and was quiet. "No," said he.

Her lovely lips, crimson even here in the star glow, crimson and full formed and luscious with youth, took on a little pout of determination. She inhaled, and let the air out in a little sad, resigned sigh.

"Then, Ken, I can say only this—you better go talk to some one you can understand! You and I are not really old acquaintances anyway, you know. You are all in a whirl tonight, I can see that much. But you better ask somebody else to explain it. Somebody you can get along with. You better ask—Joy!"

She walked abruptly away from him then. Alone, she began quietly crying. That made her mad all over again. She hadn't wanted to cry this evening; she had wanted to have a gay time. Darn it, why did she have to get personally involved in things? Why had a mere strange boy and strange girl so stirred her up inside?

Something told her the future not only held more tears, but a deal of close-to-the-heart fighting as well.

ASKS PARENTS TO AID SAFETY

Madison School Head Seeks To Get Greater Protection For Children.

Parents of pupils in the Madison township school system are being invited today by Olan LaRue, school superintendent, to attend a meeting today at 8 p. m. in the Madison high school auditorium to discuss means of obtaining less dangerous means of transporting pupils to schools in the township.

"We have," LaRue said, "many high speed and dangerous highways in Madison township over which pupils must travel to get to schools.

"Our purpose will be to discuss with parents the dangerous location where buses now stop to pick up and discharge pupils and attempt to plan safer places for the buses to stop and for the pupils to await them."

So far no Madison township pupils have been injured, but the township board of education is anxious to further assure the good record.

Township buses travel 321 miles per school day or 1,605 miles a week. Therefore, LaRue explained, it is impossible for the board to find all the dangerous stops without the help of the parents.

The warm sulphur springs of Bath, Va., discharge 350,000 gallons of water an hour.

4 EMPLOYES GET PATENTS

Westinghouse Men Awarded Papers For Household Appliance Inventions.

Announcement of the granting of patents by the United States patent offices to four Mansfielders was made today by the Associated Press in a dispatch from Washington.

All of the inventions patented are connected with the manufacture of household electrical equipment and will be assigned to the Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing company, officials of the company said today.

The four men invented the electrical processes while working in the Westinghouse laboratories in Mansfield and will assign them to Westinghouse for the construction of electrical equipment.

Those receiving the patents were Earl K. Clark who invented a process for constructing heating elements; Alfons Barnsteiner and Joseph H. Reifenberg who patented an electrical heating unit; and Paul R. Lee who invented a method of manufacturing thermostatic devices.

The inventions are several of a "great number" patented for use by the Westinghouse company monthly, plant officials said.

Warns Employers Of Deadline On Payments to BUC

C. W. Handley, manager of the Mansfield Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, warned Mansfield employers still behind on their unemployment compensation contributions, prior to 1941, that they have until midnight Nov. 18 to effect a 90 per cent credit on their federal unemployment tax, providing they pay their state tax when due.

Handley explained that under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, employers are subject to a three per cent excise tax on their payrolls. The state compensation act imposed a 2.7 per cent tax on their payrolls.

However, Handley pointed out, that employers were required to pay only .3 of one per cent to the federal government providing they had paid the 2.7 per cent to the government when due, thus effecting a credit of 90 per cent on their federal tax.

Mansfield firms are liable for the full amount of both state and federal taxes for the years delinquent unless they pay up by Nov. 18 and take advantage of savings available under the Federal Revenue Act of 1941.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®
NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1941.

It appears that the Neutrality Act was another "noble experiment."

Our Constitution safeguards the liberties of minorities—but doesn't give them the right to rule the majority.

Only two more days of what has been a delightful October—then comes November, as uncertain in its weather as in its election results.

Shooting War Has Started

WHATEVER doubt there may have been about it heretofore, we now have the word of President Roosevelt that "the shooting war has started"—that the United States has been attacked by the Axis powers and nothing is left to do but fight.

But there are a number of people who do not appear to understand that we are in the war—those congressmen and senators, for instance, who oppose repeal or revision of the Neutrality Law, and who keep harping on isolationism and withholding aid to other nations now battling furiously against Nazi onslaughts.

Nor does John L. Lewis evidence understanding that this nation is at war—or other instigators of the labor strife which has retarded production of essential defense materials through industrial strikes, a number of which were based on "jurisdictional" squabbles, or intended to enforce closed shop compulsion of union membership.

When a country is at war some of the liberties to which people have become accustomed must be temporarily abandoned and sacrifices must be made by all individuals and groups in behalf of the general welfare—which in this instance includes preservation of the nation.

There has been, and will continue to be, adverse criticism of administration procedure, muddling of the defense program, excessive non-defense expenditures, and failure of President Roosevelt to delegate authority to men qualified for special tasks but who are not supporters of his New Deal policies.

But there should be full acceptance of the fact that President Roosevelt is also commander in chief of America's military forces and executive head of government—so it is upon him that dependence for leadership must be placed in this emergency—AND HE SAYS WE ARE NOW IN A SHOOTING WAR!

That being the case, it is time for action by the president and by congress to assure full speed ahead in defense production. It is time to replace Madam Perkins with a competent secretary of labor and it is time to deal firmly with John L. Lewis and all other obstructionists—whatever their minority affiliations may be—to the end that the purposes of this war may be accomplished as quickly as will be possible if the full strength of this nation, plus the power of Great Britain, Russia and other forces opposed to the Axis powers, is earnestly applied to the task.

Expanding Army Air Force

DECISION of the war department to expand army air forces to 400,000 men or more is not surprising. That will double present air strength and provide nearly 20,000 planes of all types, with 25,000 or more pilots.

It is a big expansion, measured in percentages, but not great when compared with present-day standards. Germany's air arm is said to have more than 1,000,000 men.

For the purpose of both war and peace, we seem to be definitely embarked at last upon the Age of Flying. Military demands have been a tremendous stimulus, making progress far more rapid and new experiments more daring. But it need not be assumed that the flowering of aviation from now on will be tied to war requirements.

If the war were to end next year, progress in civil aviation would doubtless push right ahead. Civilization will no longer be grounded. Travel and freight, too, take more and more to the sky. Speed grows steadily, and the routes rise higher and higher until the shuttling planes are lost in the upper air.

Halloween Without Customary Party

NOW that it is too late to do anything about arranging for a community Halloween party in Mansfield this year, it's none too soon to be thinking about what can be done NEXT year, and thereafter.

Long before other cities had recognized the advantages of sponsoring a centralized celebration, the late Fred Hunt hit upon the idea and for a number of years carried it along as a personal activity. For the past four years the American Legion sponsored Mansfield's Halloween party, with admirable results, but this year no action was taken to provide a Halloween entertainment program, the cost having been deemed too high for one organization to meet.

While authorities have been caused considerable trouble by premature celebrators it seems likely that majority opinion would approve continuance of supervised Halloween parties, with a parade of floats, masked marchers, music and merrymaking in general.

Damage to property, or acts which endanger lives or safety, are naturally frowned upon, but the extra liberty allowed for Halloween pranks that are no more than mischievous are customarily tolerated by all who haven't forgotten their own childhood.

In the absence of a community Halloween party this year, assemblages of young people at home, or in other suitable meeting places, have been suggested as a suitable substitute.

For next year, however, sponsorship of a creditable Halloween party should be assured well in advance.

Training Firemen To Teach

TRAINING in the fundamentals of public speaking does not, at first thought, seem to have much to do with fire-fighting. Yet the fire department of New York City has set up a departmental school for its officers where 300 of them will be given such training.

This school is part of a recent expansion to provide technical training in fire-fighting for civilians and emergency fire corps. Even without the immediate danger of incendiary bombs dropping into the metropolis, or other American cities, there is need for many more skilled firemen than are now in the service. The nation cannot afford to waste valuable materials and machinery or to halt production of defense goods through big factory fires.

College Football

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

COLLEGE FOOTBALL, it's here. So's our annual argument over it. Chances are, you'll go to the games . . . take them for granted, as most Americans do. But have you ever stopped to think what those games really mean . . . how you actually feel about them?

College Football is our most popular and expensive fun. But it doesn't stop with the exit rush. It does things to us, shapes our history, leaves very deep and definite marks on our national character and personality.

ARE THEY GOOD OR BAD MARKS? IS FOOTBALL WORTH WHAT IT COSTS?

We need healthy and happy releases for energy, youthful or otherwise . . . sensible escapes from nagging worries, adult burdens, which we should learn to bear as well as dodge. Does football supply these essential things?

Does it help young people to grow up and teach old people how to stay young? Does it give youngsters sturdy standards of teamwork, self-respect, courage and fair play? Or does it help them to remain infantile . . . tragic examples of arrested development, who believe that life revolves around them and their team?

Loyalty—loyalty to certain people, certain plans, certain beloved places — campus loyalty, that's a fine thing. But when it becomes an obsession . . . when it can't see anything beyond that campus . . . it's not so good. Football breeds that sort of fanatical loyalty. But when should it draw the line . . . tell us to climb down from our high-chairs or out of our sand-lots and begin leading Regular Lives?

THEN THERE'S THE COST . . . IN CHARACTER AS WELL AS SPOT CASH. SHOULD PARENTS BE EXPECTED TO MAKE SACRIFICES — OFTEN FAR BEYOND THEIR MEANS —THAT JUNIOR MAY BECOME A CAMPUS HERO? TIME WAS WHEN SUCH SACRIFICES IMPLIED OBLIGATIONS. NOW JUNIOR REGARDS SUCH FAVORS AS HIS DUE . . . FEELS HE'S A MARTYR IF HE DOESN'T GET THEM. ISN'T THAT A LONG STEP TOWARD TURNING A SOUND KID INTO A PLAIN CHISELER?

Likewise, there's this matter of "imported talent" . . . the general football practice of buying or "subsidizing" the most promising youngsters from various high school crops. Some deny it's done. Some mask it as charity . . . say they're "helping a good egg along." Some frankly admit the practice . . . think it's smart. But no matter what it's called, how does it affect Young America's notions of honesty?

Kid problems? No. These are probably the most important questions the youngster will ever have to face. They are establishing life-long patterns of thought . . . moral slants. They will effect every decision he will have to make . . . and that's a large order, "particularly at times like these."

"Times like these"—every paragraph begins or ends with that phrase, these days. Never has Youth been plunged so swiftly and directly into adult obligations. Never has Youth so needed a mature outlook, a balanced sense of values . . . a healthy realization of his own importance to society—or lack of it.

DOES FOOTBALL GIVE HIM SUCH REALIZATION, SUCH AN OUTLOOK? IT SHOULD. TEAMWORK, UNDER THE RIGHT DRIVER, THAT'S ABOUT THE FINEST PREPARATION A FELLOW COULD HAVE FOR LIFE. HONESTY . . . LOYALTY . . . COURAGE . . . SPORTSMANSHIP . . . THEY SHOULD FIT THE GREENEST FRESHMAN FOR WHAT'S AHEAD. BUT DOES FOOTBALL TEACH THESE THINGS . . . DOES IT PRACTICE THEM?

What's YOUR vote?

Dead Letters.

Last year dead letters domestic and foreign, reached the high total of 13,666,288 in this country, the postmaster general reports. Postoffice experts, who are noted for their resourcefulness, contrived to decipher 2½ million and these were returned to the senders. The remainder had to be destroyed because they defeated even the adepts.

Money was in 61,130 of the letters and 236,269 held other valuables. The money amounted to $85,326, an increase of nearly $1,000 over the previous year's contents.

The figures show the high ratio of human carelessness. Write clearly, add a return address, register letters containing money—these admonitions of the postoffice frequently fall on deaf ears. No doubt illiteracy is a factor in the dead letter situation. For the literate there is no excuse.—New York Sun.

Last Friday's editorial page was very good, except a section of the Washington Merry-Go-Round under the caption, "What is Policy?"

What class of voters in the midwest were interviewed on the president's foreign policy? Were they in or outside of feeble-minded institutions? If the latter, then a thorough phrenological examination is necessary at once.

In playing checkers, or other games, do you inform your opponent what your next move will be? Absolutely no. Then why should the president and his advisors broadcast to the world advance information of future actions?

American citizens should not become impatient if they are left in the dark during this emergency. The only thing that we can do now is to keep our mouths shut, unless we have valuable information or constructive criticism to offer confidentially to our government.

Why We Call It 'India' Ink.

Used for water colors, and usually made up in rolls or square cakes, India ink is a black pigment.

Originally, India ink was made from the ink or black secretions of the sepia or cuttlefish; what is known as India ink today is more likely to consist of lampblack or ivory black and animal glue.

India ink is also and more properly called China ink, the former term being an allusion to the custom, when it was first so named in the seventeenth century, of describing things Oriental as Indian—as India matting and India paper, which are a variety of Chinese matting and Chinese paper.

Tank Program Surpasses Plans, Armored Mammoths for Offense

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The president was putting it mildly when he announced that the present $212,000,000 tank program will be doubled.

Real inside is: plans for a two to three billion dollar program that will boost output from 800 to 3,000 light, medium and heavy (60-ton) tanks a month. So far none of the 60-tonners is in production.

The fact that a big chunk of the new money will go for heavy tanks is highly significant. These mammoths are primarily an offensive weapon, and lack of them by the British is a chief reason for their failure to attempt an invasion of Nazi-occupied Europe.

One thing the war has proved conclusively is that without adequate tank equipment an offensive is impossible. That's why the British have been pinned down for months to position warfare in North Africa. During the summer they twice attempted to dislodge the Nazis and both times were beaten back by superior tank forces.

The exact number of heavy tanks contemplated in the new program is a military secret. But it will be several times more than what the Nazis are believed to have. Also the new monsters will be heavier armored and gunned.

They will be equipped with anti-aircraft guns as well as 37 mm. machine guns and will be impervious to the fire of light tanks and even self-propelled anti-tank weapons.

From Auto Plants.

THE BULK of the proposed new tank program will be concentrated in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio automobile centers. Farm machinery plants also will be fitted into the scheme. Motors will come from a number of factories in various parts of the country. One, the $4,000,000 Guiberson-Diesel plant under construction at Dallas, Tex., will turn out oil-burning motors.

Concentration of the new program in auto plants will have the double advantage of using production facilities already available and absorbing large numbers of workers being thrown out of jobs by forced curtailment of auto output. So far Chrysler is the only auto company making tanks. It has a $37,000,000 order for mediums and is making an outstanding production record.

All other light and medium tanks are coming from railway equipment plants. Under the new program some of these factories may be allowed to revert to building railroad cars and locomotives, for which there is a mounting need.

Busy Man.

THE DAY after the sudden death of popular Representative Lawrence Connery, a committee of his friends in both branches of congress was named to attend his funeral at Lynn, Mass. Heading the list were Senators David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge of the state.

The next morning, Walsh was informed by the office of Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Chesley Jurney that the funeral would take place the following day and that a reservation would be made for Walsh on a train leaving Washington that afternoon.

"I'm extremely sorry," replied Walsh, "but I'm afraid I can't get away as I have a number of important matters to attend to. One is the debate on the lend-lease appropriation, which begins tomorrow."

The other members of the committee notified Jurney they would attend, and the train left for Lynn—without Walsh.

The next morning a story appeared in a Washington newspaper about an incident that had occurred the previous afternoon at the Laurel (Md.) racetrack while the funeral committee was on its way to Massachusetts. In the news story was this item:

"Meanwhile, here and there in the throng were scores of familiar faces. Senator David I. Walsh joined the crowd pouring out from the first race."

Note—Senator Lodge, who attended Connery's funeral, flew back to the Capital in time for the lend-lease debate. He voted for the bill; Walsh against it. After the vote in the senate, Walsh took a train for Boston.

Embarrassing Witness.

THE NEXT time Senator Hiram Johnson invites witnesses to bludgeon the administration's foreign policies he will be careful to learn their views beforehand.

Two of the California's ace isolationist testifiers against the ship arming bill caused a hilarious tumult at the senate foreign relations committee's hearing by plumping forcefully for one of their sponsor's oldest and bitterest hates—the League of Nations.

The first was Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, who prefaced his remarks against revision of the Neutrality Act by stating that the United States is not contributing to the cause of peace by this and other measures to help Britain.

"Even if Germany is defeated in this war," said Dr. Palmer, "there will be no lasting peace unless some kind of a super-governing international body is set up to adjudicate differences between nations. The last war proved that."

"Are you by any chance for the League of Nations?" slyly inquired Senator Barkley of Kentucky.

"Yes, I am," replied the witness emphatically.

A howl of laughter swept the committee room as Johnson, squirming in red-faced discomfort, glowered at his boomeranging witness.

But the biggest blow was yet to come. It was delivered by another of the Californian's handpicked witnesses, former Ambassador John Cudahy. An outspoken foe of the president's defense policies, Cudahy had branded the ship arming bill as a "step toward war," when Senator Claude Pepper of Florida asked if he thought the United States should "help out in world affairs" after the war.

"I most certainly do," replied Cudahy. "That's the only way we can insure world peace. I was a strong supporter of the League of Nations after the last war and I would be for it again. I believe that this present war might never have come about if the United States had joined the League."

Johnson made a feeble attempt to impeach the views of his own witness by cross-examination, but each question he asked provoked a fresh roar of laughter from his colleagues, and he finally gave up in disgust.

"Say, who are these witnesses you're bringing here to testify, Senator," needled Chairman Tom Connally of Texas, "yours or ours?"

Johnson remained glumly silent.

THIS is a McCoy story. Jesse Addler is a character. He's the bachelor who invented those shoes that "make you two inches taller," "invented" them at popular prices. Recently one of his stores was held up and the clerk was tied and tossed behind the counter. When the stick-up man rifled the cash register and complained because there was only $78 and some odd change in it, the clerk apologized. "You don't know how to run a store," the hold-up man bawled. "Last week I held up a much smaller store than yours and got twice as much!" When Addler heard about the complaint he looked up his figures and transferred the clerk—for the figures showed the holdup guy was right.

Price blinked, and confessed he found nothing familiar in the stranger's face.

"Well," said the stranger, 'I'm Victor. I'm the inventor of the 16-millimeter film. While conducting experiments, I used a short you made back in 1928. Do Not Borrow Trouble.

How often do we worry for
The griefs that never come,
How often spend our energies
In working out a sum

That never will engage us. If
We would not borrow tears
It would add very much to us
And lengthen our brief years.

But we must conjure up new pain,
That may be ours to know
And waste our time deciding what
We'll do when falls the blow.

A Farmer's Diary

Down on the Farm

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

CORN is piling white and golden in the farmers' cribs. Hogs are high in price and little pigs dot almost every field and barnyard. The mother basks during lovely autumn days on some grassy slope, while the squirming white and spotted youngsters tease and clamor for their accustomed place, then ravenously feed.

Pumpkin spheres of gold gleam beneath the heavy lines of standing fodder. Cattle graze contentedly in the green lowland pasture. Modest flocks of sheep nibble tender shoots of bluegrass on the hill. The potato crop is harvested and light green threads of wheat lie across the rich dark soil.

White laying pullets range about their modern, insulated houses. They sing and cackle jubilantly.

Down along the brook the neighbor's old gray mare walks proud and carefree with her two-months foal trailing aimlessly after her. She glimpses the farmer walking toward the barn and whinners, for well she knows grain will be waiting in her trough. The colt, not ready yet to be corralled, ambles back along the path they came and mimics his mother as he attempts to graze.

The old mare turns her head and looks at him reprovingly. Satisfied, she resumes the beaten path toward her stall. Only part way has she entered when a heavy clatter of rollicking hoofs comes up behind, and to emphasize his presence, the foal lays his short ears back and nips his mother's thigh, then bounds into the stall ahead of her and nuzzles beside her nose as if to feed.

Out on the farmhouse lawn two lively boys kick a football as high as the eaves of the big barn roof, catch the dropping pigskin and struggle for possession of it. The consolidated school will play on Friday afternoon, and the third team must not fail to be in shape. Even when the chores are done, they resume their game after dusk about the tall light pole in the barnyard. Here is ample space, and their lusty shouts disturb no one.

I cannot pass a common farmstead without thinking what wealth and peace is here. Fragrance of garnered fruits; freedom to plan one's work; joy of living things, both animals and plants; lusty, rousing games of healthy, happy childhood.

5 ENTER PLEAS IN CRAWFORD COUNTY COURT

Toledoans Plead Not Guilty To Possession of Burglar Tools and Weapons.

BUCYRUS—Pleas of not guilty were entered by five men indicted by the Crawford county grand jury when they were arraigned before Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl. One returned to change his plea to guilty.

Nat Colton, 54, and Milton Bryan, 46, Toledo, charged with possession of burglary tools and carrying concealed weapons, entered innocent pleas to the former charge. Hearing on the latter charge was delayed. Both filed motions for reduction of the $3,000 under which they are now held in county jail. The motions were taken under advisement by the court.

The men were arrested April 28 in Galion when they were reported to be acting in a suspicious manner near the Ohio Garment factory. Both have long police records.

Leroy Nagel, 19, changed his plea of innocent to guilty to a charge of forgery and was placed on probation and ordered to pay the costs of prosecution. Testimony given at the hearing revealed that Nagel was absent without leave from the army in Missouri. He told the court that he would return to his company if placed on probation.

Rollin Williams and Nathan Vaughn, charged with failure to provide for minor children, were placed under $300 bond. Neither case was assigned for hearing.

MANSFIELD'S PROGRESS

Fred M. Bushnell

Vote for FRED M. BUSHNELL for MAYOR

Mansfield's enviable record among American small cities is not just an accomplishment of the last year or two . . . it is an achievement that has come out of the fullness of Mansfield's finest traditions, progressiveness and honest public service.

Fred M. Bushnell is a part of that tradition. His public service record is outstanding among Mansfielders over a span of more than a quarter century.

Fred M. Bushnell is a candidate for Mayor of Mansfield at a time when this city and its people stand in great need of a leader with his ability and qualifications.

Fred M. Bushnell is presented to the voters of Mansfield by the Democratic Party as the candidate best qualified to deal with the city's financial problems among all those of either party in the past 30 years. He was a banker in this city for 25 years, twice elected city treasurer, secretary and treasurer of the Richland War chest, treasurer of the Red Cross and all this time has been intimate with municipal financial affairs. His party honored him with the candidacy for State Treasurer in 1928, in itself a tribute to his knowledge of government finances.

Fred M. Bushnell pledged his party to conduct a clean, vigorous and forceful campaign—he is doing that and the unprecedented receptions he has received at the numerous ward and precinct rallies indicates beyond question the responsive note his program has found.

Fred M. Bushnell as mayor will immediately work for the repeal of the Unfair Sewer Charge and the return of this collection to the equitable tax duplicate.

Fred M. Bushnell as mayor will devote his full time to the job. No outside interests will serve to take his time or detract his interest from achieving the best for Mansfield. He will keep the door of the Mayor's office open to all, to those who may complain, as well as those who compliment, to Labor as well as Capital. To all he will lend an attentive and considerate ear.

Fred M. Bushnell as mayor will make his decisions influenced by no group or selfish motives. His decisions will have but one objective—what is right and best for Mansfield!

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Second after second crawl away into infinity as I waited for Lillian to give some sign that she had heard me speak of Marion. Her unwinking eyes stared at me as if I were some species of bird or beast, strange to her, which she was examining.

That her despairing wail to her husband had been a last outburst of emotion, and that she was now back in the apathy which had terrified us, was plainly to be seen.

But when I had come to the fearsome conclusion that she had not heard what I had said, and had felt the pressure of the nurse against my shoulder as she loosened her patient's arm so that she might feel her pulse again, there came a flicker of comprehension into my friend's eyes, so faint that at first I did not realize it was there, and then her voice sounded in our ears, flat, wooden, like that of a deaf person trying to understand what is being said.

"Madge!" She spoke my name with a curious falling inflection. "You said—something—queer—just now. What was it?"

Nurse Intervenes.

The nurse slipped between us with swift decision.

"Lie down again, Mrs. Underwood," she said, with the authority in her voice one uses to a child who may prove refractory. "Mrs. Graham has something important to tell you about your daughter, but she wishes to be alone with you when she tells you."

I reflected bitterly that I wished nothing less. What I should do with my friend, so palpably on the border line between sanity and temporary madness, without the help of either her husband's strength or the nurse's calm efficiency, I had no idea. But I had no alternative, so I mentally adjudged my shoulders to the yoke as the nurse's quiet voice went on.

"Your husband and I will be just outside the door, ready to come in at any call. But please try not to call us until Mrs. Graham has finished telling you what she wishes you to know. That's right, Mr. Underwood, put her down, and then go into the other room."

Underwood Obeys.

He obeyed her with a last pitiful look at Lillian's ravaged face. But she was staring up at me, oblivious to his going, the bewildered look still in her eyes.

I heard the door close behind the nurse as she followed Harry out of the room, then I knelt down beside the bed and took my friend's inert hands in my own, looking deep into her eyes, with the hope that I could cut through the apathy in which horror had wrapped her.

"Lillian!" I exclaimed sharply. "Are you listening to me?"

Another long second ticked its way into eternity, and then she spoke feebly, as if she were groping her way through a mental fog.

"Yes, I am listening. What did you say just now—about—"

Wants To Shield Marion.

Her voice faltered and died out, as if she were reluctant to speak her daughter's name, and I knew her outburst to her husband had been her first involuntary reaction upon awakening from her drugged sleep, but that now she was subconsciously trying to hide even her daughter's name from the people who had known and loved her.

"I have something to tell you about Marion," I repeated steadily; "something cheering. And I want you to lie still, and listen attentively, while I tell you about it, I do not wish you to say a single word until I have finished, but I want to be sure that you hear every word."

There was a distinct flicker of attention in her eyes now. They were coming alive, and I knew that the hypodermic, combined with my words, had brought her back to comparatively sane thinking.

Madge Tells About Code.

"Ronald received a letter from Marion several days ago," I began, "a very strange letter in which many simple words were misspelled."

The flicker was stronger now.

"Misspelled?" she exclaimed, and I shook my head reprovingly at her.

"Please do not speak again until I finish," I said. "The letter asked Ronald to show the letter to Mary Veritzen, giving the excuse that Mary would know she had won a bet of their childhood when she read it.

"After much persuasion," I went on, "Ronald let me show the letter to Mary, and she found out it was in a code of their childhood, and that misspelled words before and after a sentence meant it was to be taken as exactly the opposite in meaning. Yes, you may talk now."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT HIM FOR MAJORS

You know that you will not often make a shaded informative double, for a takeout, unless you are prepared for a weak response by your partner in either major suit. That is, unless the doubled bid is one major, in which event you are ready to support a bid of the other major. It is the same with your opponents. When your own side winds up as the declarer after an opponent has made such a double, you usually are acting soundly if you count the doubler as having a fair number of major suit cards. Such reading may indicate the only successful line of play to you.

	♠ J 5 2 ♥ A K 9 6 ♦ J 7 5 ♣ Q 8 2
♠ Q 10 7 3 ♥ Q J 10 8 ♦ A 9 2 ♣ 7 5	N. W. E. S.	♠ 9 8 4 ♥ 5 2 ♦ 10 6 3 ♣ J 10 9 4 3
	♠ A K 6 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ K Q 8 4 ♣ A K 6

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	Dbl	Rdbl
2 ♣	Pass	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 NT

After West led the heart Q, South immediately decided to count on him as holding at least four cards of each major suit. There was such a small amount of honor strength out of sight that he could easily see the double was extremely shaded, and hence must be based largely on distribution of one amount or another. Since East could not come through with a major response, to show four cards of a suit at the range of one, it was a virtual certainty West had four or more of spades and hearts.

So South proceeded to build a combination of a squeeze and lead-throwing end-play against Mr. West's marked holdings, counting on West for the diamond A and also the spade Q. After winning the first trick with the heart K, he took the second with the club A and led the diamond 4 to the J. He came back with the diamond 5 to the K and A, and the heart 10 return was taken by the A. Next came the diamond Q and 8, West tossing the spade 3 and North the heart 6.

The club Q was cashed and on the 8 to the A West was pinched. If he discarded one of his remaining three spades, the A and K would drop the Q and set up the J, so West instead discarded the heart 8. Then the heart 7 was led to the J, and West had to lead away from the spade Q. That enabled the spade J to win, and the two spade tops completed the hand, producing 11 tricks where only 10 had seemed to be in sight.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 30.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A fairly propitious state of affairs is read from this day's astral configurations. There may be sudden opportunities for reaping good profits, which should be grasped with alacrity and with entirely novel methods of procedure. The best progress may be made by deviating from conventional ways and means but any form of cleverness departing from accepted standards might precipitate financial loss, also loss of credit and standing as well as litigation.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively year, with many things developing by fresh, novel, original and clever tactics rather than adhering to old routines. However, while this new and original grasp of opportunities may have surprising benefits, overstepping accepted bounds might precipitate defeat, loss or legal entanglements.

A child born on this day will have many fine creative talents, inventive, original and exceptional, which may be developed into lucrative expression.

A brief business session was held at which time plans were made for a benefit card party to be held at the hall at 7:30 p. m. Nov. 13. Mrs. Shay will be in charge of this event.

Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Shay reported on the recent C. I. O. convention which they attended in Youngstown. At the close of the evening refreshments were served. The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 25 at the lodge hall.

GEN. JOHNSON: Ohio's Supply of Men for Army Dwindles

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Every time this column sticks its neck out of its own bailiwick to horn in on my brethren of the sports-writing fraternity it gets a perfectly justified crack in that neck. Usually these gentle jolts from the fraternity, who seem to have at their finger tips everything that has happened since Jem Mace and Abner Doubleday, have an effect of showing that I don't know anything about this business—don't even suspect anything and mostly they are right. The last time was when the amiable John Kiernan sweetly took me apart for questioning a fatal pass-interference penalty in an Army and Navy game.

Johnson

The pictures showed that I was right in what I was aiming at but Mr. Kiernan made the column look like something the cat dragged in because of its approach. Anyway an old grad has no business using his column to boost his college. So I retired from that field in very poor order and for many years.

But one thing that gives me a pain is some (but far from all) of the publicity about the comeback of the Army team. That is constant reference to Earl Blaik as the "Darthmouth coach who has worked a miracle with almost exactly the same material that was a fourth rate Army team."

It is true that Red was a Dartmouth coach and that he has worked a miracle. But he is a West Point man. He was the "Army "assistant" coach during all the years of great army teams. It was a heart-breaking assignment. It was a heart-breaking wrench for him to go to Dartmouth. When he went Army slumped, and never recovered until he came back.

As has sometimes been remarked and bewailed, Army stuck to the idea that an Army head coach had to be an Army officer whether he was good or not. It was a sort of Manchu dynasty of an heriditary succession. It overlooked the fact that coaching is as much a profession as medicine.

It is true that Army produced some good football coaches like Biff Jones and Bob Neylands, but they mostly learned the profession through years of service elsewhere.

There was also a sort of West Point tradition, not without its exceptions, of favoring lads in the upper classes and of excellent deportment and academic standing and keeping promising material bottled up as Red Blaik was bottled up until he uncorked himself to go to Dartmouth.

Blaik evidently understood all this, in coming back to West Point, he insisted on coaching independence and bringing his own staff of assistants.

Perhaps it is too early for this piece. The Army has an unbeaten record, but its toughest games are yet ahead. Nevertheless all who have seen the team in action testify to a revolutionary change in tactics, training and zip which hasn't been seen on The Plains for many years.

Having long argued for the best coaching available for one of the nation's principal academies, this alone seems to me to justify a little cautious crowing with a hope that the far abler and better informed sports writers won't have something I don't know about to explode in my face.

ESTIMATE STATE FARM INCOME AT $428,000,000

Rising Prices Expected To Bring Total To Highest Figure Since 1920.

COLUMBUS — Farmers' wives are dreaming of fur coats and merchants up and down Main street are rubbing their hands—for Ohio farm income this year will be the best since 1920.

Farm prices have skyrocketed and crops have been good. The gross income this year should reach $428,000,000, according to Prof. John I. Falconer, chairman of the department of rural economics at Ohio State university. That would be 20 per cent higher than last year.

"Price raises account for most of the increase," Falconer said, explaining that costs have risen too, but more slowly.

"Increased crop yields account for the rest of the increase," he said. "For example corn yielded 47 bushels an acre this year compared with 37 bushels last year. This means fatter hogs marketing at $11.60 a hundredweight on Sept. 15, compared with $6.50 a year ago.

The 'farmers's dollar' was worth $1.03 in Sept. 25 cents better than a year ago."

This farm parity figure, based on a comparison of prices received with prices paid, showed that the farmer's buying power was above the $1.00 parity of 1920, and approached the all-time high of $1.16.

Farm income since August has risen 25 per cent above last year and is expected to continue at that level, making the year's average increase about 20 per cent, Falconer said.

The Oriental Soy Bean, known to the Chinese for 3,000 years, has leaped into the front rank of cash crops in Ohio.

The versatile bean, relatively a newcomer to Ohio farms, brought $1.58 a bushel in September, compared with 66 cents a year ago. There were 650,000 acres in production compared with 96,900 acres in 1929.

Livestock has contributed heavily to increased income. September prices ranged from 14 per cent higher than Sept 1940 for beef cattle to 45 per cent higher for hogs.

Wheat, oats and rye showed the principal price increases among grains, of about 29 per cent in each crop compared with Sept. 1940. Other grain prices increased 22 to 24 per cent in the same period.

Mansfield youngsters who are looking for pumpkins for Halloween lanters may have to be satisfied with the small ones like their mothers use for pies. Big pumpkins are reported scarce in the county area this fall, and one Mansfield father who has a number of farmer friends said he looked a long time for a big one before he gave up and tried to convince his skeptical family that there "just aren't any." County Agent George B. Ganyard said county farmers apparently don't raise pumpkins for cow feed as they did a few years ago.

Although the city apparently will not have its customary Halloween carnival Friday night, Mrs. Ada Hunt, widow of Fred Hunt, who sponsored the celebrations for a number of years, already has her bid in as sponsor for a Halloween carnival next year. Mrs Hunt said she wants to continue the carnivals that were started by her late husband and provided entertainment for thousands of Mansfielders every year. She said she did not have time to plan a celebration this year because she did not learn until too late that no one else was going to sponsor a program.

"Human Flies" still have an appeal for the public. A large crowd congregated around the west wall of the Richland county courthouse last night to see Johnnie Wood, 47, scale the building. The job took approximately a half hour and when Wood reached the top he made his descent via the inside courthouse stairs. This "Human Fly" has been climbing buildings since a small boy. He lays claim to scaling the Woolworth building in New York and also Devil's Tower monument, atop of which a parachute jumper recently gained wide publicity.

DIRECTOR SAYS NUMBER OF 1-A MEN GETS LOW

Indicates Future Draftees May Be Drawn From Deferred Classes.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — State selective service headquarters revealed today that the supply of Ohio men available for induction into the army "is getting low" and that many future draftees will be men drawn from deferred classifications.

Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, said that at least two of Ohio's 330 local draft boards have reported their stocks of class 1-A men exhausted. He added that "probably numerous other local boards we haven't heard about" face the same situation.

"I'm not worried and I don't see any reason why anyone else should get worried," Col. Goble declared "After all we're much better off than some of the other states."

Athens county draft board No. 2 reported to state headquarters yesterday that it had only 52 class 1-A men on hand and that its supply of class 1 men will be exhausted with the induction of the 52. State draft officials said that in addition they knew of "at least one board" in the state that "doesn't have a single 1-A man on hand." They refused to disclose the name of the board.

Col Goble said that when the available supply of manpower got "low enough to worry about" he would instruct local boards to "start combing the deferments" for men who would be entitled to reclassification.

"The local boards probably will consider first the cases of men deferred for minor physical defects and those given deferred classifications because of employment in vital industries," he said.

He added, however, that the fact that local boards would reconsider the cases of men in 1-B and 2-A classifications was "no certainty" that anyone would be reclassified.

"All the boards will do," he said, "will be to review these cases to find out if conditions have changed since the registrants were given their original classifications."

Col. Goble said that it would be a "normal procedure" for local boards to reconsider the cases of deferred men when the supply of potential draftees ran low.

"In the meantime," he said, "Ohio will go ahead and fill its quota at every call. If one particular board has no 1-A men on hand and can't fill its quota we'll just have to make up the difference from boards with ample supplies of 1-A registrants."

He said that there still were 14,350 class 1-A men on hand and awaiting induction in the state and added that 53,900 others have been placed in class 1 tentatively pending physical examination.

Plans to Raise Expense Accounts To Meet Prices

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — State Budget Superintendent John M. Wilcoxon said today that in an effort to minimize the effect of constantly rising prices the expense accounts of traveling state officials probably would be raised to an "adequate" level.

Wilcoxon said that as a result of a two months' study of rising prices and their effect upon state employes, a recommendation had been made to Gov. John W. Bricker that expense accounts of traveling employes be increased.

"State employes who travel seem to have been able to get along all right on their $2 a day for living expenses but the principal sore spot has been hotel bills," Wilcoxon said.

GIVES BOARD 'CLEAN BILL'

State Examiner Says Records of Conservancy District All In Order.

The Mansfield Conservancy board, headed by E. R. Hartman, received a clean slate for its handling of the conservancy program in the city area for the period from July 1, 1939, through Dec. 31, 1940, a state examiner's report showed today.

No findings for recovery or irregularities were reported by the examiner from the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices.

"We find that a proper record of proceedings is maintained and proper action has been taken by the board in connection with the annual levy to provide funds for the payment of maturing bonds and interest," the report said.

Set up as a flood control project in the club area, the district has not been active except for minor dredging work in the past two or three years.

Bonds amounting to $165,000 were issued to finance the program and a tax levy to pay them and the interest charges has been collected at the county treasurer's office for the past seven years.

The debt will be retired next year and the levy dropped from the tax duplicate, under present plans. The levy this year is fourtenths of a mill.

Members of the conservancy board serving with Hartman are C. L. Hartenfels, vice president; Mrs. Blanche V. Hamblin, secretary-treasurer, and C. L. Van Derau, fourth member.

MAE WEST'S HUSBAND SAYS HE CONTESTS ACTION FOR DIVORCE

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Frank Wallace, former vaudeville performer and now appearing in a Cincinnati night club, declared today he will "fully contest" the divorce action filed against him in Los Angeles yesterday by Screen Actress Mae West.

Miss West's action was in the form of a cross-complaint to Wallace's suit for $1,000 a month separate maintenance. Miss West admitted in her suit that she was married to Wallace in Milwaukee in 1911, but that they separated after only one month as man and wife.

This latter contention was denied today by Wallace, who declared.

"There never has been a legal separation. I have always considered us man and wife."

As to his claim for separate maintenance, Wallace explained that by saying:

"When we were married, we had an agreement that whichever of us might get to the top in show business, the other would help."

"I plan to fully contest the divorce action," he went on, "first because of my professional career, and second because I consider us man and wife. My position in all of this is simply one of following the old principle, 'Live and let live.'"

"What's all this about our having a game with Galion Nov. 9?" asks Coach Earl McMullen, Manager Fred Rizzo, and not a few of the City News pro gridders.

"We've tried and tried to get a game with them, and they won't give it to us."

Well, it begins to look like the Galion Jaycees are going to talk themselves into a game with the Mansfielders whether they want one or not.

Several weeks ago while Rizzo was trying desperately to get a game for that week-end, I heard him call Galion and plead for a grid date. He turned away from the phone with the remark: "They say they're not ready for us yet."

Imagine my surprise to see in the next day's Galion paper an item listing the City News on the future Galion schedule.

Last week the Galion paper and The News-Journal carried a Galion item setting the City News game for Nov. 9.

"Fred and I went to Galion the week before and we were turned down again," says McMullen. "Besides, we've got a game booked at Minerva Nov. 9."

Yes sir. it looks like the Galion Jaycees have been telling the Mansfield pros one thing, and their home town fans another, and with their talking, one way and another, they're going to talk themselves right into a game one of these days.

A home-and-home series should be a money-maker for both teams.

Add echoes on the Mansfield-Massillon game:

Canton Repository—"Each team showed its mettle, and all deserve pats on the back Massillon fans who find it hard to accept the tie probably are those who gave points when they wagered on the game. The rest are thankful the Tigers escaped defeat. The tie is no disgrace. It was gained against a team that, for the second time, proved it wasn't scared by Massillon's impressive record. Sheer fighting spirit alone can make a team deny the Tigers touchdowns as Mansfield did when it staged one of the finest defensive exhibitions witnessed on a Stark county gridiron in recent years."

Incidentally Massillon, while pretty well used up, came out of the game without serious injury. Brandt was the only Tyger injured. Good teams haven't time to play dirty football. All their time is taken up with playing football.

Let-Down By Tygers Feared

Tyger Coach Remembers 1940 Upset By Ashland.

SNYDER fears Cleveland Central. Well, not exactly that. "What I do fear is over-confidence," Coach Paul Snyder of the Mansfield high Tygers declared today as he primed his gridders for their Friday night game against Central at Stadium field.

* * *

"The situation was exactly the same last year when we were upset by Ashland 7 to 6," the Tyger tutor pointed out. "We had just played a great game against Massillon, the town was boosting us to the skies, Ashland didn't look very tough, and the team suffered a natural letdown.

* * *

"Now we've just played another great game against Massillon and along comes Cleveland Central with only two points to its credit all season, and badly beaten in every start. It's just the kind of a setup that could bring an awful upset.

"So we've been working all week trying to polish up the offense that didn't click against Massillon, and working on an aerial attack."

Snyder said Chuck Condon, who replaced the injured Adam Brandt in the Massillon game, will start at the fullback position against Central.

* * *

"Certainly I'm going to start the first team," Snyder said in answer to reports that he might start his reserves. "Condon, Jones, Doolittle, and Krupp will be in the backfield, and the regular line, with John Butler, in Bill Pecht's tackle spot, will also take the field at the first kickoff."

The Mansfield mentor thus sticks to his tactics of the regular season, not taking any chances until the game's won.

Mansfield will meet Central without the advantage of having scouted the Cleveland team. In the few weeks before the Massillon game the Tygers concentrated on scouting Massillon, and now Canton McKinley next week comes in for the biggest part of Mansfield's scouting activities.

* * *

Central's record didn't indicate it would need much scouting, and now the Tygers find themselves in the position of fearing some trick play that might work.

* * *

Even though Central doesn't appear in the class of Mansfield's other opponents, there should be a crowd on hand Friday night as a tribute to the Tygers for their great Massillon game.

Bellville Set For Invasion

Town To Follow Gridders To Madison Tomorrow Night.

BELLVILLE—"The whole of Bellville is going to Mansfield Thursday night to watch the Blue Jays battle the Madison Rams," Coach George McIntyre said today.

Preparations are being made to bring as large a rooting section with the Bellville team as possible and the Bellville gridders are quietly plotting to upset the Madison Rams.

All this week, McIntyre continued, the Blue Jays have been working on defensive play.

"We believe that the main Madison strength is on sweeps of the ends and we're going to be ready to stop them," McIntyre continued.

Strongest man in the Bellville line is Bill Levingston, right guard.

In the backfield the outstanding star this year has been George Dill, quarterback. Against Butler last week Dill tallied three times as the Blue Jays won 27-7.

So far this season the Blue Jays' mid season reversal of form seems to be pointing for a Ram upset. After dropping the first four games, they walloped Sunbury and Butler by convincing scores.

* * *

The Rams have won four out of six games, dropping tilts to Dennison and Mt. Vernon.

To start the Homecoming activities at Madison two junior high schools, Woodville and East Mansfield, will start play at 6:30 p. m. to decide the championship of Madison township.

Cleveland Rams Meet Detroit

CLEVELAND—(INS)— Satisfied that they are not going to lose any great amount of money this season, the owners of the Cleveland Rams professional football club today looked forward to Sunday's tussle with the Detroit Lions and hoped the gate would justify their faith in Cleveland pro football fandom.

* * *

A bad run of luck and lack of good reserve material was blamed by Coach Dutch Clark for loss by the Rams of four of their six games played thus far.

The Rams opened the season by beating the Pittsburgh Steelers and Chicago Cardinals, then dropped successive tussles to the Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions, Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins. With a little luck, Clark believes they might have won two of these games—the ones with Green Bay and Washington. They were lost by the margin of a field goal.

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Bob Distelhorst, veteran Capital university tackle, may be out for the rest of the season because of an army injury received in the Kenyon game last week. Capital plays Otterbein at Westerville Saturday.

TUNNEY TAPS BASEBALL PLAYER FOR THE NAVY

SAN FRANCISCO—(U P)—Lieut. Comdr Gene Tunney today tapped Sam Chapman Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder for the navy—if the army doesn't object.

Chapman, former All-America football player at University of California and one of the leading batsmen in the American league, has been classified as 1-A by his Mill Valley draft board. But he prefers the navy.

RAMS REMAIN

CLEVELAND —(AP)— President Dan Reeves says that the Cleveland Rams of the National Professional Football League definitely will remain in Cleveland next season. The club lost money in each of its four previous seasons. Officials said that this year's financial statements showed that the club might break even despite higher overhead.

Loop Leaders Finally Edged

Baker-Windsor Team Takes Second Place.

They needed a 96-pin handicap to do it, but Mary McMullen and "Pop" Warner finally broke the high scoring rule of Margaret Baker and Bud Windsor in the mixed doubles league at Colony alleys last night.

* * *

Their total, including handicap, was 1,091 compared to 1,003 for the Baker-Windsor duo.

* * *

F. McKinley had high total of 544 for the league, while Mary McMullen led the women with 536.

Veterans Guard Cleveland Goal

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Moe Roberts will carry the Cleveland Barons' bid for another American Hockey League title with him tonight as he takes the net in the season opener against the Pittsburgh Hornets.

* * *

Moe is the Barons' regular goalie, and is starting his ninth campaign with Cleveland. He will have some help from Bill Beveridge, another veteran who has been acquired as an alternate, but the main burden belongs to Moe.

* * *

One rookie, defense man Harry Dick, will be in the starting lineup tonight. Joe Jerwa, who is underweight and troubled by a hand injured when he scored a winning goal against Providence in the first round playoffs last spring, will be unable to play. Dick, a Port Colborne, Ont., husky played with Atlantic City of the Eastern Amateur League last year.

TAKES DECISION

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—(AP)— Garvey Young, 148, of Akron, O., won a 10-round decision from Rego Dell, 150, of Bridgeport, Conn., in a boxing bout last night.

Ohio Man May Beat Buckeyes

Pitt Guard From Canton Best Defensive Panther.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—An Ohio boy may turn the trick if Pittsburgh upsets Ohio State's football applecart Saturday.

He's Ralph Fife, who comes from a long line of football-playing Fifes at Canton. Ralph was a star on one of Canton McKinley's teams before he became an outstanding lineman for the Panthers.

It's Guard Fife and Quarterback Walter West, Ohio State scouts believe, who hold the key to how well the Panthers will be able to throttle the crippled Bucks' offensive.

* * *

Fife and West are line-backers deluxe. When they are in the game little gaining is done through the Pittsburgh line. Just ask the backs of Minnesota, Michigan, Purdue, and Duke.

Those four teams beat Pitt, but most of their scoring came with either Fife or West or both resting on the bench.

"If Fife or West go against us for 60 minutes we're going to have a tough time beating those Panthers," said Assistant Coach Carroll Widdoes, who scouted Pitt.

Johnny Hallabrin, the Mansfield ace, is working out in the Ohio fullback spot with Sophomore George Lynn of Youngstown taking over the blocking quarterback position.

For all anyone knows, Bob Zuppke may be brewing up another poisonous potion for Michigan's Wolverines at Champaign this week.

Whenever anyone mentions Illinois and football to a Michigan fan, he promptly recalls 1939, the last time the Wolverines fell into a Zuppke pitfall.

That was the season of Illinois 16, Michigan 7, followed the next week by Minnesota 20, Michigan 7, and the end of Big Ten and national title hopes for Tom Harmon and his mates.

This year Minnesota already has gotten in its knocks at Michigan and won again. This Saturday the Wolverines face Illinois But the situation is a bit different. In 1939 Michigan was unbeaten and in top shape, which made it ripe for an upset; this year Wolverine morale admittedly is low after the bruising taken from Minnesota.

Syracuse's appearance Saturday at Wisconsin is the first visit of an eastern team at Madison since 1938 when Pittsburgh dropped in to beat the Badgers, 26-6. . . . By contrast the 1941 Pitt team has been an easy mark for every Big Ten team it has faced (Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota), with Ohio State next on its list.

Northwestern thinks it may have the reply to last year's 13-12 defeat by Minnesota in Dick Erdlitz, who has made nine of ten conversions this year and will be in there swinging his foot against the Gophers Saturday. . . . The Oshkosh, Wis., lad made five straight points after touchdown last season after the Wildcats lost to the Gophers for lack of an accurate kicker. . . . Bernie Bierman's current backfield choice for Minnesota is Warren Plunkett, quarterback; Bill Daley, left halfback; Bill Garnaas, right halfback, and Bob Sweiger, fullback.

PITT SELLS 50,000 SEATS TO OHIO GAME

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—The University of Pittsburgh today prepared for a 50,000 attendance day come Saturday when the combination of Ohio State football and Pitt homecoming day will draw the season's first real crowd of the Panther stadium.

Coach Charley Bowser was busy shaking up his squad in an effort to produce something resembling a winning combination.

OUTPOINTS BANTAM

AKRON—(AP)—Freddie Pope of Columbus easily outpointed Chiquito Sanchez, Mexican bantamweight champion, in a 10-round bout here last night.

Madison Boys Star at Galion

GALION — Two former Mansfield Madison high stars are helping the newly organized Galion Jaycees professional grid team to a great start in their first season.

* * *

Galion has won four straight games with Gene Harmon, Madison's state champion scorer of several seasons ago, performing at a halfback post, and big Jack Priest holding down a tackle job.

* * *

Other stars in the high-scoring backfield are Bullit Claybaugh, pile-driving fullback, Del Goldsmith, 200-pounder, Jim Ernst and George Corrado, sharp-shooting passers.

Coached by Bob Corry, the Jaycees have rolled over Lorain 58-7, Marion Monarchs 31-0, Cleveland Collinwood A. C. 34-7, and Toledo Merchants 38-6.

Tonight they tangle with the Columbus Livingston A. C. under the lights at Heise park at 8 o'clock.

Whitcomb Gets 594 In Transportation

Whitcomb of Globe Steel rolled high total of 594 and high game of 233 in the Transportation league last night at Colony alleys. His teammates, Laning, sr., and Cousins rolled games of 216 and 210 to give Globe a 991 game and 2,628 total.

MEHOCK'S FATHER CRITICALLY ILL

Harry Mehock, director of physical education in Mansfield schools, returned this morning from Streator, Ill., where his father has been critically ill since he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last Thursday. He has been in a coma since then.

Junior High Teams Seek City Grid Title Tonight.

IT'S the big game of the season tonight for hundreds of Mansfield boys and girls, their parents and brothers and sisters and cousins and aunts and uncles. They won't all be playing but a large percentage of them will be on hand at Stadium field to see the Johnny Appleseeds and John Simpsons tangle in their second annual junior high city championship grid battle.

There was a big crowd on hand last year to see the first football game between the two schools, in which Simpson won the first leg on the three-year Downtown Coaches' trophy by a one-touchdown victory, and the rivalry carried on through the basketball season which saw both the Simpson and Appleseed gymnasium jammed for their games.

Are the schools taking this game seriously? John Simpson yesterday afternoon held a pep rally that would have done credit to the high school before the Massillon game, and a similar rally is scheduled this afternoon at Johnny Appleseed.

Cheer leaders had charge of the rally programs at each school.

Records of the two teams for the season install John Simpson as a slight favorite to retain the city title, but injuries have tossed this form sheet to the winds, and the coaches now agree that the outcome is a toss-up.

Simpson has lost a regular tackle and an end through injuries, while Appleseed has lost a tackle.

Annual football dinner for members of the Appleseed team and their fathers Thursday night in the school cafeteria will also serve as a farewell party for Coach Paul Cameron who leaves Friday to become a physical instructor in the army.

"We're going to get together with the boys and their dads for an evening of good fellowship, and no long-winded speeches," said Cameron. After the dinner, the ninth grade will sponsor a Halloween dance in the school gymnasium.

Probable lineups for tonight's game are.

Appleseed	Pos.	Simpson
Swihart	LE	Bollantz
Haley	LT	Davis
Hall	LG	Connell
Wendell	C	Armstrong
Cupp	RG	Miller
Joseph	RT	Russell
Mong	RE	Luckie
Miller	QB	S. Musille
Bickel	LH	Zivkoff
Myers	RH	Schmidt
Zeller	FB	D. Musille

OFFICIALS NAMED

The John Simpson-Johnny Appleseed junior high city championship game went completely big time today with the naming of officials for tonight's contest. L. C. Kreeger of Ohio U., one of the officials in Saturday's Michigan-Minnesota game, will be the referee. L. T. Rang of Akron and Lars Wagner, Oberlin, both well known for their work in Ohio high school and college games, will be the other officials.

The U S now has about 20 billion dollars worth of gold in storage.

Boy Meets Girl.

The old story of boy meets girl has a Manhattan locale in the Paramount comedy, "New York Town," co-starring Fred MacMurray and Mary Martin and showing at the Ohio. As a sidewalk photographer MacMurray does all right until he starts acting as cupid to a small town girl who wants to make good in the city. He engineers her romance with an eligible bachelor and then finds himself in love with the girl. Mary Martin, the New York stage star, has the role of the girl and Robert Preston that of the bachelor. Akim Tamiroff, and Lynne Overman are in the cast.

The Park theater beginning today will present a change of program on Wednesday instead of Thursday as heretofore and will start its week-end bills on Saturday instead of Sunday. Presenting Robert Benchley as a bewildered visitor in the Disney studio the audience is taken on a tour of the plant and shown how cartoons are made. The picture includes several cartoon stories including "How to Ride a Horse," and the title episode, "The Reluctant Dragon." Tim Holt's "Robbers of the Range," is the second attraction.

Boys Drama.

Taking up the battle against brutal practices in the corrective treatment of youth he is aided by Mickey Rooney in the role of "Whitey," who leaves Boys Town to do a man's job but becomes a victim of circumstances when he tries to help another boy. ANNOUNCES NEW CASE OF FEVER

Health Commissioner Reports Second Person Ill With Undulant Fever.

Announcing that the second case of undulent fever within the past three days had been reported to his office, Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, yesterday reiterated his appeals that Mansfield residents be careful to use milk and milk products sold only by registered dairies.

The new case was not in the city but is that of a resident of a nearby farm, Wild said. He did not reveal the name of the farmer afflicted but said that the disease had come from one of the farmer's own cows which has been killed since.

The animal was suffering from Bang's disease and transmitted the undulant fever to her owner. Monday, Wild reported that a Mansfield woman was suffering the disease, having contracted it from cottage cheese.

The disease is not contagious but is communicable through the milk of cows or goats. All such cases must be reported to the health department by law so that a check can be made to protect other citizens, Wild cautioned.

GOPHERS LINEUP SHIFTED

MINNEAPOLIS — (INS) — Coach Bernie Bierman today experimented with shifts in the injury-riddled Gopher varsity lineup in preparation for Saturday's Minnesota-Northwestern clash. Bill Daley was moved from full-back to left half and Bob Sweiger went through drills at full.

LANDIS IMPROVED

PETOSKEY, Mich — (INS) — The condition of Judge K. M. Landis, baseball's high commissioner who has been recuperating from bronchial pneumonia, was reported good by physicians at Little Traverse hospital.

BIDDING HELPS STOCK LEADERS CONTINUE RISE

Steels Lead In Fractional Upswing; Most Issues Stay Indecisive.

NEW YORW — A few departments of the stock market attracted enough bidding today to extend by fractions Tuesday's modest upturn but many of the leaders continued in a narrow and indecisive drift.

Steels were the best of the industrial division at a quiet and irregular opening. Motors showed neglible changes and utilities and merchandising shares were inclined toward the soft side near the second hour.

Receiving buying attention were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Electric, Westinghouse, Kennecott and Standard Oil N.J.) Lacking rising spirit were Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, United Gas Improvement and Owens-Illinois.

Tending to offset threats of a widening circle of strikes in defense plants was the word from Washington that President Roosevelt was considering legislation to control this situation.

Warning to Mothers:
WORMS CAN CAUSE TROUBLE

Learn the truth! Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms. And they can cause great distress inside your child without your even knowing what is wrong.

Many pale, nervous, underweight children have bowel worms. Other innocent-looking warning signs are uneasy stomach, fidgeting, itchy seat, nose-picking.

Don't take chances with roundworms! Get Jayne's Vermifuge today! It is America's best known proprietary worm medicine — used by millions, for over a century. Jayne's expels stubborn roundworms, yet acts gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.
